3. Supervised practice arrangements (for the EuroPsy Certificate)

3a Please describe the arrangements for one year (or equivalent) supervised practice

All graduate programs in clinical psychology and some of the other applied psychology programs include practice under qualified supervision during the summer and thesis periods. However, since the second year of the master programs are officially defined as the thesis period, all of these practices cannot be recorded on the academic transcript. TPA and psychology departments have begun to launch an initiative for legislative arrangements on this issue until the end of transition period.

Currently there is no legal arrangement for supervised practice. However, the plans for implementing supervised practice for entry into the profession were covered in the accreditation regulations. In these regulations, supervision starts following the first year of the master's program, conducted by a faculty member who has either a PhD in clinical psychology or a master's degree and at least a total of 10 years of experience in the psychotherapy field. The supervision has to take place for at least one academic year and can be conducted with only one student or with groups of two to three students, but must involve one hour per student each week. Students should have experience in various accepted contexts (the psychotherapy education laboratory or centers in the institution, in student health/counseling centers, hospitals and I/O settings etc.). The implementations will be evaluated via standard forms, being consistent with the EuroPsy supervision criteria. Students can also complete the supervised practice after graduation. However, details and duration of this practice as well as the quality of the supervisor are to be certified by NAC.

Appendix 3: Structure of Accredited Psychology Programs

Undergraduate education in psychology lasts for 4 years, and just like in the US, is institutionalized on the basis of academic competence and scientific model, yet grounded on the 'member of a profession' definition. Many psychology departments consider the APA and EFPA standards together and have established master's and doctoral programs in a number of sub-areas of psychology. In this regard, psychology departments focus on a specific practice and allow for six years of higher education including an internship with supervision. Considering the priorities and resources of undergraduate education in Turkey, the basic principles and achievement standards of the curriculum to be implemented and the qualifications that graduates should possess are extensively defined, and an accreditation process has been started. The Turkish Council of Higher Education authorized the TPA to accredit psychology departments and programs.

Appendix 4: Arrangements for evaluation and training of supervisors

- i) NAC & SNAC have evaluated supervisor candidates in line with the EFPA Regulations on EuroPsy. Up until now, 14 TPA members approved as Level-1 supervisor defined in the guideline.
- ii) A guideline for supervision in psychotherapy practices is decided to be developed by the S-NAC.
- iii) A call for supervisors candidates is to be publicised via web and e-lists of TPA.

Appendix 5: Legal Regulations about recognition of psychologist title in Turkey

In Turkey, the title of clinical psychologist is regulated by Ministry of Health in the frame of “bag bill”. Accordingly, only clinical psychologists are entitled for psychotherapy practices.

In the related article of “bag bill”, the definition of Clinical Psychologist is regulated by three different formulas, as follows:

- i) 4-year undergraduate program in Psychology + 2-year master’s program in Clinical Psychology;
- ii) 4-year undergraduate program in Psychological Counseling + 2-year master’s program in Clinical Psychology;
- iii) Non-psychology graduates: 4-year undergraduate program in a different area + 2-year master’s program in Clinical Psychology + 4-year PhD program in Clinical Psychology (totally 6-year education in Clinical Psychology)

Note: In the category of iii, completion of 1-year Preparatory period in an undergraduate program of psychology is generally mandatory. Accordingly, a total of 7 years of education in Psychology are completed by non-psychology graduates.
